WHY SEAL CRAFT FOR SAR?

PURPOSE-BUILT

Two configurations engineered from the ground up for rescue — not adapted from recreational watercraft.

GOES ANYWHERE

Thin ice, pressure ridges, rocky riverbeds, debris-filled flood channels — our SAR line covers the full spectrum.

PATENT-PENDING INNOVATIONS

Five patents across the SAR line: TPU hull, reduction drive, ice braking system, air frame, and steering console.

ACCESSIBLE BUDGETS

Starting at $26,995 (Raft) or $48,000 (Airboat). Every package includes a custom trailer, ready to launch. No six-figure price tag required.

BUILT FOR CRITICAL RESPONSE

Every Seal Craft SAR platform starts with the same foundation: a patent-pending 3,000-denier TPU hull — engineered to perform where conventional rescue boats fail. With superior puncture resistance, tear strength, and impact absorption than standard materials, it flexes over obstacles instead of breaking on them. Rated to −140°F and proven across floodwater, debris, shallow rivers, unstable terrain, and subzero temperatures, this hull is what allows Seal Craft to go further, take more abuse, and keep operating when conditions are at their worst.

From that foundation, each configuration is purpose-built for its environment. The Swift Water Raft is engineered for debris-filled flood response and shallow river operations, while the Ice Rescue Airboat configuration introduces five patent-pending innovations designed for ice, slush, and mixed-surface rescue. The Seal Craft SAR line gives departments the ability to cover a multitude of conditions without the weight, complexity, or cost of legacy equipment.

Seal Craft delivers the performance, durability, and accessibility teams need to respond without limitation.
